

PNC Bank Adds Seven Leed™-Certified Green Buildings; Raises Total To 84

WASHINGTON, D.C., Aug. 9, 2010 – The U.S. Green Building Council (USGBC) has certified seven more Green Branch[®] locations of PNC Bank based on environmentally friendly construction and design, boosting its total to 84 LEED™-certified green buildings.

In 2002 PNC became the first major U.S. bank to design and build environmentally friendly LEED-certified bank branches in the United States and now has more newly constructed certified green buildings than any company on Earth.

PNC (NYSE: PNC) is the only bank permitted to use the term Green Branch[®] based on the registered trademark granted by the U.S. Patent & Trademark Office. The trademark is affirmation of PNC's leadership and commitment to green business practices.

"We have continued to evolve our innovative approach to eco-friendly business practices and we have momentum with 30 additional locations awaiting certification by the USBGC," said Gary Saulson, PNC's director of corporate real estate.

The bank's prototype Green Branch[®] features include:

- Materials: more than 50 percent of the branch is locally manufactured or made from recycled or green materials.
- Energy & Water Efficiency: energy usage is reduced 35 percent or more compared to a traditional branch; water usage is reduced by 4,000 gallons a year and window walls are three times more efficient than code.
- Pollution Control: construction waste is recycled or salvaged and the cooling system is designed to protect the ozone.

The newly certified Green Branch[®] locations are in three states. All 84 (81 for new construction and three for interiors) certified locations can be found via www.pnc.com/green.
